

Kirsty Webb

Primary School Teacher

Kirsty is a primary school teacher currently working at Linton Heights Junior School, Cambridgeshire. She went to school and college locally before heading to the University of Brighton to study Physical Education. After graduating, she went straight into teacher training with Cambridge and Suffolk Schools Alliance. This led to getting a job she loves at one of her placement schools. Working with children has always been a huge passion of hers and she says teaching is the most rewarding job, giving children opportunities daily to exceed their expectations.

She recently participated in Inspire 2020 at the Fitzwilliam Museum, Cambridge and her class' work is on display in the Inspire exhibition until 22nd March 2020.
