In this session we will be joined by drama specialist David Allen, who will be taking us through his new collection of resources on AccessArt, Drama and Art. This 5-part collection shows how drama techniques can support the exploration and understanding of paintings, celebrating the different ways in which drama and art intersect.

David will discuss how the two subjects can be taught together to foster skills in creative thinking and communication, as well as nurture an awareness and appreciation of art.

This session is aimed at teachers of ages 4-11.
